Reasons for Allowance

1. Claims 1-27 are allowed.
2. The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance:

The cited prior art taken alone or in combination fails to teach the claims invention of determining a presentation pattern of teaching material in a computer assisted education system wherein a trait profile of the user is determined based on a questionnaire and related analysis that establishes quantified scaled values of features related to specific traits (learning behavior) to define a custom teaching material presentation pattern which is used to generate related teaching material module that is presented to the user and further analyzing the learning behavior of the user during a learning process and dynamically modifying the teaching material presentation pattern based on the trait and learning behavior pattern of the user and storing the modified presentation pattern.

The closest prior art (USPN 5,810,605, Siefert; USPN 5,122,952, Minkus; USPN 6,206,700, Brown; Integrating Models of Personality and Emotions into Lifelike Characters, Andre) taken in combination cites elements related to a school curriculum stored on a computer; an automatic learning tool selection for individual child development that identifies personal traits and assigns a PNR code to each where P relates to products selected to enhance a child strength, N relates to products selected to abate a child weakness, and R relates to products selected for recreation, fun and entertainment; interactively adapting to user to dynamically change the learning strategy; and the integration of personality and emotions into lifelike characters. combination of prior art touch on various concepts of the subject invention but fails to address the concept of traits defined by a plurality of scales, quantitative in nature, associated with learning behavior of the user wherein such scale considerations are defined in the specification at page 5, lines 23-27 and at page 13, lines 16-21 relating to at least Fig. 4.

3. Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."
